

Evers' Brother To Post

Pledges Work For Equality Of All Men

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The brother of slain Medgar Evers took over as Negro civil rights champion in Mississippi today and pledged to work for "the equality of all men."

Uneasy Jackson looked forward to the possibility of more demonstrations, such as the one on Saturday when hundreds of Negroes, crying "We want the killer," charged police barricades.

Although Charles Evers, 40-year-old brother of the assassinated field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, did not disclose his policies in detail, the ferment in the Negro population was such that many onlookers had a sense of foreboding.

Leaders of the Negro movement to break down racial barriers in Jackson have proclaimed a policy of: "Demonstrate, demonstrate, demonstrate again."

Sunday was a comparatively quiet Sabbath. Four young Negro women walked quietly into St. Andrew's Episcopal church, across the street from the governor's mansion, and were allowed to remain throughout the service.

However, at three other churches—Central Presbyterian, First Baptist and First Christian—Negroes were turned away.

At St. Andrew's the four Negro girls, clad neatly in summer frocks and carrying Bibles, listened from a rear row as the rector, the Rev. Christoph Keller Jr., read a passage from the First Epistle of John:

"If a man say I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

Noting man's achievement in space, the minister said: "In the field of human relations, what have we accomplished—fear, tension, suspicion and a tragic death in the community."

He referred to the so far unsolved killing of Medgar Evers by a rifle bullet last Wednesday. He was shot in the back as he stepped out of an automobile near his home.

The body of Evers, a World War II veteran, sped today to Washington for burial in Arlington National Cemetery Wednesday.

A white hearse took it to Meridian, about 100 miles from here Sunday and there it was transferred to a Southern Railway train bound for Washington.

Controversial Street Now Being Paved

Five blocks of the controversial Thompson Blvd. are being paved, and this reduces the dust problem in West Sedalia some, but the problem is not yet completely solved.

Materials for coating the boulevard from 16th to the south line of the intersection with 11th are being paid for by the Boeing Co., and the materials for coating the street from the south line of 11th to about 150 feet north are being paid for by the property owner, Leonard Hall.

The work is being done by the 12-Mile Road District, as promised by the District last Fall, providing the material was furnished.

The Sedalia Chamber of Commerce worked with the Boeing Co. and the Road District in making arrangements for the project.

Last Fall the City of Sedalia, the Chamber of Commerce and the 12-Mile Road District, and other agencies having to do with air pollution and street work, received hundreds of complaints from residents in West Sedalia concerning the dust problem created by traffic using the unpaved street from Highway 50 to 16th.

State Fair traffic used the street, as did hundreds of lake-bound cars with trailers, then traveled east on 16th to avoid traffic congestion at Broadway and Limit. As last Summer and Fall were extremely dry, clouds of dust hovered over West Sedalia most of the time.

As the street is out of the city, E. W. Thompson, developer of the area, attempted to have the street paved by the 12-Mile Road District. The road district commission maintained the street was not an access road to Sedalia, therefore had a low priority for paving, the same as other non-access roads in the district.

The road district commission maintained it did not have funds to pave all of the unpaved roads in the district, but would pave Thompson Blvd. if Thompson would furnish the materials. This is common practice in new developments in this area.

During the Winter and Spring, the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce worked with Boeing and the road district to obtain materials for paving the area from 16th to 11th, which passes along the boundary of the Boeing trailer park.

The roadbed is 48 feet wide, and only half of this bed is being paved. The remainder of Thompson Blvd. from just north of 11th to West Highway 50 will not be paved at this time, as far as The Democrat-Capitol could learn.

Even though the area inside the trailer park is unpaved, part of Thompson is unpaved, and a considerable amount of building is going on in the area, the five-block pavement should reduce the dust problem considerably, but will not entirely solve the problem.

Watchful Eye On Russian Space Feat

WASHINGTON (AP) — American military leaders are keeping a watchful eye on the Soviet Union's latest space venture—a feat that evoked little surprise or concern elsewhere in the capital.

A rendezvous of cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova with cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky would have high military significance. It could indicate an ability to replace crews of vehicles used as space patrols and an ability to inspect orbiting vehicles for nuclear armaments.

Shooting down a satellite in wartime might not be a difficult task, some military experts believe. But before a decision to destroy a suspicious satellite was made, an inspection would be desirable. Space rendezvous could provide the means.

Other than the possible military significance of the twin space shoot, the orbiting of a woman caught the most attention here and at Cape Canaveral, Fla., the starting point for American space flights.

Typical of the congressional reaction was the comment of Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, chairman of the Senate Space Committee. "I'm not surprised," the New Mexico Democrat said when told of the launching of Miss Tereshkova. "There isn't any reason why women can't go up into space."

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, said "It doesn't surprise me that the Russians want to pull another spectacular by putting a woman into space. It shouldn't interfere with our scientific program. I don't want to downgrade their achievement, but it doesn't mean we have to follow suit."

A note of concern was sounded, however, by a member of the Senate committee, Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, who said, "This is a further indication that the Soviets are ahead of us in space."

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, O. B. Lloyd Jr., said the United States has no current plan for putting a woman into space. Such a prospect, he said, is "way down the road."

At Cape Canaveral, space agency personnel had no official comment on Miss Tereshkova's flight, but privately they saluted the achievement.

On the American distaff side, the reaction was mixed.

Jerri Cobb, an Oklahoma City pilot who was the first of 13 American women to pass physical tests comparable to those for male astronauts, said, "It's a shame that since we are eventually going to put a woman into space we didn't go ahead and do it first."

She was joined in protest by Mrs. Philip Hart, woman flier and wife of the Michigan senator.

Ben-Gurion Resigns As Israel Chief

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—David Ben-Gurion, prime minister almost continuously since Israel was founded in 1948, has resigned for personal reasons.

A government spokesman said he also will relinquish his seat in Parliament but will remain as head of a caretaker government until a new one is formed.

Speculation spread that the 76-year-old leader resigned Sunday because of criticism in Parliament over his handling of a security case. But a communique issued after a Cabinet meeting said Ben-Gurion's reasons for quitting were "not connected with any state problem or event."

One source said that when the Cabinet pressed Ben-Gurion for the reasons he replied, "I am keeping them to myself."

The security case involved German scientists developing nuclear rockets for the United Arab Republic. An Israeli security chief, who never was identified, resigned last March because of differences with Ben-Gurion. Opposition parties demanded an open debate on the resignation, but Ben-Gurion's Mafai party averted it.

Many Items On Agenda

Council May Get Budget Tonight

Several items of major importance are expected to be brought before the Sedalia City Council at its regular meeting tonight.

Probably the most important item will be the annual budget.

Councilman E. B. Smith, chairman of the Finance Committee, said this morning that the committee worked all afternoon Saturday, and that he worked all day Sunday, in order to get the budget in final form for presentation tonight.

Smith said that the budget for each department will be a little higher than last year. Late last year it was brought out in council meeting that all departments were running a little over their budgets, and in the past two months each department was asked to curtail expenditures in order to keep expenditures within anticipated revenue. This created a situation whereby departments overspending had to delay some planned activities until the money became available.

Smith said that the additional money to complete the planned program of street improvements, with the city working in conjunction with the 12-Mile Road District, will be authorized tonight.

Smith said that the finance committee attempted to work out a budget that would prevent such an occurrence during the current fiscal year. Presentation of the budget tonight will be approximately one month earlier than in the past two years.

The City tax levy is scheduled to be acted on tonight. The levy last year was $1.59 per $100 assessed valuation. It will not be known until tonight what the levy will be for this year.

There is expected to be some action on re-zoning requests. Friday night, the Zoning and Planning Commission declined to approve two applications for re-zoning, on protest from citizens.

In normal procedure, the Zoning and Planning Commission should read its report at the council meeting tonight, then the council may take action on the commission's recommendations, or delay action until further study.

Mikoyan Recovered From Illness; Back at Work

MOSCOW (AP)—Anastas Mikoyan, a first deputy premier, was reported back at work Sunday for the first time in weeks—and his job was to share in a cosmic conversation with Valentina Tereshkova, the woman cosmonaut.

Premier Khrushchev did the talking but a Tass report said among others with Khrushchev was Mikoyan. He was taken ill with a bad cold after meeting Fidel Castro, the Cuban revolutionary leader, on April 27 in Minsk and soon was hospitalized. The sickness spread to his

Polaris Viewed As Strong Force

EDITOR'S NOTE — Vice Adm. Claude V. Ricketts, the Navy's second-in-command, has returned from an important mission to London. He explained to British officials the U.S. Navy's thinking on the proposed NATO nuclear force of merchant-type vessels armed with missiles. He gives his views in this exclusive interview.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. Claude V. Ricketts said today the Russians "would be incapable of preventing retaliation" from a fleet of Polaris missile-firing ships operating under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Ricketts, vice chief of naval operations and the Navy's top expert on the proposed multilateral NATO nuclear force, made this confident statement in an exclusive interview.

It was his first such interview since returning June 8 from London. There, he explained to British naval and government officials the U.S. Navy's thinking on the proposed force of merchant-type vessels to be manned by mixed crews from some of the 15 NATO nations.

The British have been pictured as skeptical about the concept. In fact, except for the West Germans, no NATO nation has demonstrated any readiness to contribute cash and men to such a nuclear force.

Challenging the doubters, Ricketts contended a ship-borne Polaris force would have "a high degree of survivability" — meaning ability to elude any Soviet attack.

The Navy's second-in-command argued it would be impossible for the Soviets to pinpoint all or even a considerable number of the Polaris ships in the millions of square miles of ocean in which such vessels would roam.

This was the basis of Ricketts' assertion that the Russians would be unable to prevent this force of about 25 ships from launching their 200 or so missiles at Soviet targets if war came.

"We of the U.S. Navy have made a very thorough analysis of all of the military facets of this question," the three-star admiral told an AP reporter. "We have come to the very definite conclusion that this would be a very effective force. We are convinced that our conclusions are right."

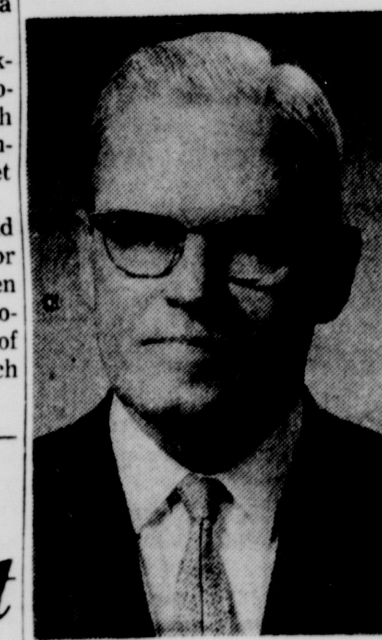

Ricketts disclaimed any role as salesman for the multilateral plan — one London paper called him a "Polaris peddler" — but said he went to London to answer whatever questions the British had in mind concerning the technical and strategic aspects of the proposal.

He stressed he did not get into political questions or the issue of money contributions.

Meanwhile, it was learned from other knowledgeable sources that

Distinguished Alumni Honor To Salveter

Henry Salveter

Henry C. Salveter, 1212 South Barrett, was one of five former Park College graduates to receive the distinguished alumni award at Park College Saturday.

The framed plaque presented to Mr. Salveter reads as follows: "The Alumni Association of Park College is honored to pay tribute to a distinguished alumni, Henry C. Salveter, Class of 1923, talented lawyer, Christian gentleman and tireless civic worker. He has used his professional training and knowledge for the benefit of his native state, home community and his church. He has been prosecuting attorney of Pettis County, member of the Senatorial Redistributing Commission of Missouri and recently appointed by the Governor to the Mental Health Commission of Missouri. In the Episcopal Church he is a valued member having been a lay reader for 30 years. We honor him for his broad Christian view of life."

It was signed by Louise M. Bird, president of the Alumni Association and Paul Morrill, president of Park College. On it also is the date, "June 15, 1963."

The presentation was made in the new chapel of the college at the convocation in the afternoon by Harry W. Seamans, who has been with the State Department, Washington, D. C., for 20 years.

The occasion was a reunion of all the classes and a banquet was held that evening with large signs bearing the class years on the tables so that members of the classes might sit together.

Mr. Salveter was accompanied to Parkville, where the college is located, by Mrs. Salveter, his daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Colburn, Denver, Colo., who, with her son, Mark, is visiting in the Salveter home, and by Jan Metcalf, of New Orleans, La., granddaughter of Mrs. Salveter, who is also visiting here.

Salveter was born near Crocker, Mo., was graduated from Park College in 1923, taught school four years, and then attended Michigan University law school from which he received his law degree.

Vehicles 3-Miles Apart; No Indication of Hookup

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union's mixed space duet logged its first 24 hours in joint orbit today. An official announcement said that on their first orbit the male and female comrades moved to within three miles of each other.

As they entered the second day of their joint flight, the world's first woman cosmonaut, Valentina Tereshkova, 26, still was flashing smiles for Soviet television and Lt. Col. Valery Bykovsky performed a stunt in his cabin.

The woman cosmonaut sent a salute to the United States.

Official announcements still gave no indication of whether the pair would try a hookup in space and doubts have been growing that they will.

The late afternoon announcement mentioned for the first time that Miss Tereshkova and Bykovsky were only three miles apart on their first joint orbit Sunday, a feat that appeared to duplicate the flight of the Soviet space twins last August.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said:

"According to more precise data about the trajectory of the flight of the spaceship Vostok 5 and Vostok 6, the smallest distance between them on the first circuit of the paired flight was approximately 3.1 miles."

Tass also reported that up to 3 p.m. Miss Tereshkova, 26, had made 18 orbits in 26 hours in flight. Bykovsky at that time had completed his 40th orbit. He was launched at 3 p.m. Friday.

"Both cosmonauts began their working day with physical exercises," said Tass.

Tass said all systems on the two spaceships—Vostok 5 and Vostok 6—were working normally. Soviet officials remained silent on whether Bykovsky and Miss Tereshkova would attempt a rendezvous in space.

Observers noted, however, that Miss Tereshkova is not a trained pilot and might not be able to carry out her role in a complicated link-up maneuver.

Tass said the purpose of sending a man and woman into space was to compare the effects of space flight on the two sexes.

Bible Reading Ruling By High Court

Unconstitutional For States To Require Reading

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Supreme Court ruled 8-1 today it is unconstitutional for a state to require Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools.

Holding that requirement of such practices—common in a preponderant majority of the state—violates the "establishment of religion" clause of the Constitution, the majority rejected an argument that the exercises are essentially moral teachings and not religious practices.

Justice Clark, who wrote the court's main opinion on two cases coming from Maryland and Pennsylvania, declared:

"Nor are these required exercises mitigated by the fact that individual students may absent themselves upon parental request, for that fact furnishes no defense to a claim of unconstitutionality under the establishment clause."

"Further," Clark said, "it is no defense to urge that the religious practices here may be relatively minor encroachments on the First Amendment."

"The breach of neutrality that is today a trickling stream may all too soon become a raging typhoon and in the words of Madison, 'It is proper to take alarm at the first experiment on our liberties.'"

He had declared that the First Amendment requires that the government be completely neutral where religion is concerned.

Clark added that nothing the court said today would bar study of the Bible or of religion "when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education."

But he reiterated that the school exercises in the Maryland and Pennsylvania cases did not fall into those educational categories. Rather, he asserted, "they are religious exercises required by the states in violation of the command of the First Amendment that the government maintain strict neutrality, neither aiding nor opposing religion."

Justice Stewart wrote a dissenting opinion.

Burglars Take Cash At East End Tavern

Burglars made off with an undetermined amount of money and some whiskey from the East End Tavern, Fifth and Engineer, overnight Sunday.

Police Officers Albert Blankenship and Gordon McDowell discovered the break-in at 4:35 a.m. Monday morning. Entrance was gained by ripping a screen from the transom over a rear door and then pushing open the transom. The burglars then climbed through the transom and unhooked the rear door.

Money taken was from a cigarette machine and a juke box pried open inside the establishment. Lawrence Twenter is owner of the tavern.

Police reported an attempt was made to pry open the front door before the burglars turned to the rear door. Police are investigating.

business in town on Friday night by keeping the banks and stores open, I see no reason for charging a parking meter fee on Friday night," the mayor said.

The mayor added that he realizes the city would lose a little money by offering free parking on Friday night, but that he believes the additional business attracted by offering free parking would more than off-set the loss.

Mayor Studer said he also intends to bring up the matter of starting the parking meter charges at 9 a.m. The practice of starting the meter charge at 8 a.m. began many years ago, the mayor said, when stores opened at 8. Now, he pointed out, the majority of the stores open at 9 a.m., and the parking meter charge should begin at that time.

The mayor said he has received several complaints from traveling people staying overnight in Sedalia, planning to see business men and visit stores at 9 the next morning. In several cases, he said, the visitor has found an overparking ticket on his car when he left his hotel at 9. Mayor Studer said he will ask the Parking Lot Committee to take the matter under study and make some sort of recommendation to change the policies.

American Democracy A Farce

Racial Violence In US Makes Propaganda in USSR

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Racial violence in the United States gives the world's Communists a golden harvest of propaganda. They are making the most of it.

Newspapers and radio in Communist-ruled countries from China to Cuba have seized enthusiastically upon the events in the U.S. South.

The Communists tell the people of their own countries and the world that what is happening in the United States proves that claims of American freedom and democracy are fraudulent, that American leaders are hypocrites, that American "ruling circles" secretly plot brutal suppression of minorities.

Red propaganda machines are trying to see to it that the events in the United States do Americans and their system the most harm possible. The messages are pounded out day after day in broadcasts to Africa and other areas populated by colored peoples.

Inside Communist-ruled countries, the newspapers and radio make the most of dispatches and news pictures of violence in Southern states. Again and again the idea is stressed that violence and hatred show the true face of American democracy, that the race troubles are a natural outgrowth of the system, a "disease of capitalism."

The Soviet press has exhibited a large degree of satisfaction in reporting the events. Often the domestic press reporting of the race troubles from the United States is factual and restrained. But the general tenor of Soviet coverage seems aimed at convincing the Soviets that minorities in their nation—and all working people—are far better off than ordinary people under the American system.

How effective is this propaganda?

Polaris

current U.S. thinking follows these lines:

—The cost of building and operating a force of some 25 Polaris surface vessels mounting about eight missiles apiece would be substantially less—perhaps $1 billion less—than the $5 billion mentioned in the past.

—The proposed NATO fleet would be built over a period of six or seven years.

—The Polaris launching ships would be constructed in the yards of the participating countries, which would provide a means of offsetting some of the cost of joining the force.

—Command of the vessels and the composition of their crews would probably be allocated in proportion to national contributions. Under present prospects, that would mean the United States and West Germany would dominate, although each ship would have at least three nations represented.

—The force probably would be under the NATO supreme commander in Europe, currently U.S. Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer. British doubts about the surface Polaris fleet reportedly have revolved around these main points:

Whether such ships could roam the Atlantic and Europe's coastal waters undetected, whether the surface ships would have to be escorted to protect them from air or submarine attack, whether they would have to carry anti-aircraft guns or missiles to defend themselves, and whether a mixed crew would present serious problems of compatibility and efficiency.

U.S. authorities are counting on the surface Polaris ships to blend into thousands of merchant-type vessels plying the Atlantic and Mediterranean on any given day. It's the U.S. view that the Russians would face an impossible task in locating and trailing each of the Polaris ships, and keeping an accurate fix on them so as to be able to strike all of them at one time.

There is no plan to escort the Polaris surface ships, or to arm them with defensive weapons. Escorting warships would add heavily to the cost of the force and would draw attention to the Polaris ships.

American officials foresee no trouble in maintaining proper safeguards against premature firing or in developing the machinery for rapid response.

One example: Friday, in North Korea, a U.S. general asked a Communist general for information on two U.S. pilots forced down in Red territory. The American asked the Communists to "act like men living in the 20th century." The North Korean whipped out a photograph of a police dog lunging at a Negro in Birmingham, Ala., and snapped that it was "the true picture of what you call civilization."

Here is just a scattering of samples of how Communist propaganda, in the month since the outbreak of disorders in Birmingham, has been using U.S. race troubles:

Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper of the U.S.S.R.: "The outrages committed by racists against people who are denied human rights just because of the black color of their skin evoke indignation in the whole world, and especially in countries of Africa and Asia. The wolfish laws of capitalist society lie at the bedrock of its foreign and domestic policy."

Izvestia, the Soviet government paper:

"No hypocrisy by Washington officials can hide the obvious fact that they have no intention of really stamping out racism. There is a link between the racist outrages in Alabama and the entire Washington policy."

Neues Deutschland, Communist organ of East Germany:

"Day after day, people in the United States are being abused, humiliated, tormented, oppressed because their skin is darker than that of their white fellow citizens. President Kennedy who is now preparing to visit Europe as a 'crusader for democracy' could eliminate it if he concentrated the power of his office on it."

Red China:

Federations of trade unions, youths, students and others are passing resolutions denouncing the United States government. Said a typical Chinese broadcast: "This battle is a fresh reminder to the people of the whole world of the hypocrisy of U.S. democracy and freedom, and serves to expose the Kennedy administration's duplicity. President Kennedy plays a despicable role in the racial discrimination and persecution."

A Moscow broadcast to East Africa:

"If the U.S. government really wanted to, order would be restored in Alabama and Mississippi in

Fed 1,200 at Dairy Night
Slightly more than 1,200 people went through the lines at the Dairy Night ice cream social last Friday evening.

About 120 gallons of ice cream was used and between 70 and 75 cakes. Five cakes were sold at the end of the event. Seventy-nine cakes were promised and 81 were delivered. About 1/4 of the cakes delivered were sent by people who had not sent in their cards. Those cakes really saved our lives as we would have been short otherwise.

Everything went off real well, though attendance was not as large as expected. Gross income was about $186. When all bills are paid, it will be necessary to dig back into our reserve for about $70.

Raabe and Higgins 'Pasture' Winners

The "Pasture of the Month" judges were busy last Thursday inspecting pastures nominated for the month. Judges for the north side of the county included Louis R. Hughes, Jr., Carl Shoe and Bruce Claycomb. South side judges were Willard T. Hall, W. E. Bingaman and A. B. Clevenger.

Pastures nominated for the northside of the county included Smith Higgins of Houstonia and Robert E. Curtiss of Route 5, Sedalia. South side nominees included K. E. Tilman of LaMonte Township, L. F. Raabe of Dresden Township and Cloyd Merk of Smithton Township.

Winners included L. F. Raabe, who had 45 yearling steers on 12 acres of top dressed pasture and 16 acres that had not been top dressed, and Smith Higgins, who had 25 two-year-old steers on 21 acres of pasture that had been top dressed this last February.

Spray for Grasshoppers Before Harvest

The grasshopper hatch has picked up again after the cool weather ended. Moderate to heavy numbers of small hoppers can be found in field margins, ditch banks and other idle land. In some areas small hoppers can be found in cultivated crops and pastures. The best time to control grasshoppers is when they are small and are still confined mostly to the hatching areas. That means that they should be treated now because if you wait until after harvest they will be much larger and also scattered throughout your crops.

For spraying field margins and other areas not to be pastured or cut for hay, use one ounce dieldrin (one-third pint 15 per cent dieldrin emulsifiable concentrate) or two ounces aldrin (1/2 cup 45 per cent aldrin emulsifiable concentrate) or 1 1/2 pounds toxaphene (one quart 60-65 per cent toxaphene emulsifiable concentrate) per acre. The toxaphene dosage can also be used on beef cattle pastures with no interval between treatment and use of the pasture. DO NOT use any of the above insecticides on pastures being used by dairy animals.

For treating dairy cattle pastures or hay or forage crops to be fed to dairy animals, use either 1 pound Sevin (two pounds 50 per cent Sevin wettable powder) or 15 ounces malathion (1 1/2 pints 57 per cent malathion emulsifiable concentrate) per acre. Keep dairy animals off of malathion treated pastures for five days following treatment and do not cut hay or forage crops within seven days of treating.

Hornflies Serious

Populations of hornflies continue to be very high on untreated herds. Counts ranging from 100 to over 500 per animal have been observed. The hornflies are relatively easy insects to control but continue to be the major animal pest problem in the state.

Backrubbers are one of the cheapest and easiest controls. However, with numbers built up, it probably would be advisable to first spray the herd and then charge and distribute your backrubbers to keep the flies under control, once you have them that way.

Watch the Use of 2,4-D in Town
I frequently receive calls from town people where neighbors have used 2,4-D and the fumes have drifted. One lady from the southwest part of town called me the other day where much of her shrubbery had been damaged from spraying against the fence.

A month ago I was in a garden in east Sedalia where grapevines, onions and tomatoes had been damaged.

Any spraying that is done had best be done in the evening when there is no breeze and the air is relatively heavy. Also, the nozzle should be set so the spray is as close as possible which will prevent drift. Probably the safest thing would be to use a common sprinkling can which will get your weeds with no danger of drift.

How Often to Lime

Some questions have been raised as to how often lime should be applied to the soil. Extension soils specialist, John Falloon, says, "A full limestone application, with full fertilizer use and high yields, is likely to last from four to six years." This is essentially one-half as long as several years ago with low yields and little fertilizer use.

Holstein Bull Receives Award

A registered Holstein bull owned by the University of Missouri Department of Dairy Husbandry and Floyd Silverthorn of Holden, has been designated a silver medal production sire by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Whirlhill Brutus 1283950 (VG) is one of comparatively few sires to be so honored in the entire history of the National Holstein Organization.

The bull's 22 daughters compiled an official production average of 13,904 pounds of milk and 560 pounds of butterfat.

Cattle Outlook

A larger supply of fed beef through summer and early fall is indicated by the 11 per cent increase in the number of cattle on feed in 28 states, April 1. Therefore, any recovery in fed cattle prices cannot be expected until later in the year. The April 1 inventory of cattle on feed showed only a two per cent increase for Missouri, while the number in the North Central states increased seven per cent, and the Western states increased 20 per cent. Although the July 1 inventory of cattle on feed will likely exceed year earlier levels, the seasonal decrease in fed beef production during late summer and fall should contribute to a price recovery of $2 to $3 per cwt. on choice steers.

Rural Highway Safety

There are a number of things we can do on the farm to improve rural highway safety. One instance is with regard to field entrances along heavily traveled highways.

If these field are fenced, the lane into the field should be fenced in about 30 feet and the gate placed there. That way equipment can be moved completely off the road before it must be stopped for a gate. Likewise, it can be through the gate and the gate shut before you are ready to pull onto the highway in leaving the field.

Also, they recommend at intersections, that all high vegetation be cut back 300 feet from the corner in all four directions. It might be difficult to do this with crops, but a small triangle of grass or alfalfa could be planted in a corner.

Certainly all trees, bushes and so forth, as well as weeds, could be kept cut for a distance of 300 feet from the corner to give clearer vision there.

75 Year Old Man Gets College Degree, Eagle Scout at 71

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—Edwin Halcrow graduated from College of San Mateo Saturday and planned to leave for Boy Scout camp today for a three-month tour of duty as camp commissioner.

Halcrow, 75, who has five children, 20 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren, received an associate in arts degree from the college. He began his studies there after he retired in 1955 as pastor of a Baptist church at Yreka, Calif.

He called his college career "my own personal experience in geriatrics."

Halcrow had a heart attack in 1959, the year he became an Eagle Scout at 71, but points out, "it hasn't slowed me down much."

COOL HOGS are faster gaining hogs, says Homer B. Sewell, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the University of Missouri. At upper left, is the nozzle of a sprinkler system in use at the University Swine Testing Station. The spray is extremely fine, but the water droplets are visible on the backs of the hogs as they take advantage of a cooling shower. Cool hogs eat more often and make faster gains, and that can be important when spring litters are being pushed to market weight, says Sewell.

Advantages In Keeping Hogs' Temperature Down

When the temperature goes up, hog profits are likely to go down, says Homer Sewell, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the University of Missouri.

There are advantages in keeping hogs cool, Sewell asserts. Cool hogs eat more often, and gain more rapidly. Fast gains are important when spring litters are being pushed toward an early market.

In a Purdue University experiment, hogs weighing over 200 pounds were found to lose weight at 96 degrees F. and 30 per cent humidity. In another trial, hogs kept in a 90 degree environment required twice as much feed to make a pound of gain at 100 pounds, and almost three times as much feed when they weighed 200 pounds, as did hogs in 70 degree surroundings.

Though many animals can sweat through the skin for a cooling effect, swine perspire only through their snouts. This is why water, in the form of a wallow or a spray is so effective in cooling hogs, says Sewell. It furnishes water on the skin to evaporate and cool — sort of artificial sweating.

Shade and water go together. Sewell recommends 10 square feet of shade for each 200 pound hog, and 12 to 15 square feet for sows and boars. Natural shade from trees is the best. Artificial shades for hogs should be five feet above ground to give good air circulation. A simple way to make a hog shade is to drive posts in the ground to support a roof made of woven wire covered with straw. There are some advantages to making the shade portable, adds Sewell.

The old-fashioned mud wallow cools hogs, but it is a sanitation hazard. A sanitary wallow can be made from metal, wood, or concrete. It should be cleaned every two or three days and refilled. Provide 100 square feet of wallow for each 50 pigs.

A sprinkler designed to drift a fine spray of water over the hogs is one of the most effective ways of cooling hogs. They are well adapted for use on hogs raised in confinement on concrete floors.

The sprinkler should have an hourly output of one to three gallons of water on a 20 to 40 pound pressure system.

Locating the nozzle six to eight feet above the floor increases the area covered by the spray. Two nozzles will take care of 50 hogs.

Proper location of shade, feed, and water is important for hogs on pasture. Putting them close together encourages the hogs to eat and drink more often, especially in the heat of the day. The wallow should be located in the sun, but close to the shade.

Bing Crosby's Wife Graduates As Nurse

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Kathryn Crosby, wife of Bing Crosby, is among June graduates of the Queen of Angels School of Nursing.

She received her diploma Sunday in commencement exercises at St. Vibiana's Cathedral.

Mrs. Crosby graduated with a class of 34. Among them was the 1,000th student to complete the course since the school opened in 1928.

Next season the singer will appear in a total of seven shows. On alternating weeks, the hour will be filled by suspense tales. Goodman Ace, the head writer whose wit and skill was largely responsible for the excellence of the Crosby hour, has left to become head writer for Sid Caesar, who next season will do a short special every other week on ABC.

New Tone By Buddhists In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A faith which for thousands of years has preached poverty, self denial and nonviolence exploded this week into a ghastly human sacrifice in the middle of a busy Saigon street.

More ritual suicides have been promised by Buddhist monks and nuns involved in Tuesday's suicide by fire of a 72-year-old monk.

The monks are speaking in a new tone, one which presages more bloodshed and might even topple South Viet Nam's government, headed by President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

"This thing is beginning to look almost like Japanese Shinto—the banners, the ritual suicide, the blazing fanaticism," said a Saigon Catholic priest. "I think it could lead to the destruction of the religious faith in Viet Nam."

South Viet Nam's Buddhist leaders explained their position in a communique.

"For thousands of years," it said, "the Buddhist religion has been generous and forgiving. Because of this, Buddhism has always practiced peacefully in this country. The priests and faithful have been terrorized. Despite this, we have avoided making trouble, not because we are cowards or weak, but because, for the moment, the country is at war, and we must share this suffering."

"But unfortunately there are a number of people who use their powers to make trouble for our priests and faithful all over the country. In the face of these injustices, we are obliged to rise up and fight for our theology."

The patriarch of Vietnamese Buddhists, the Rev. Thich Tinh Khiet, said: "Our only arm is sacrifice and union of action. We strictly adopt a policy of nonviolence, but if necessary, we shall sacrifice ourselves to the last man."

Do the leaders represent the faith as a whole?

Most South Vietnamese follow a hybrid of religions, including ancestor worship, Confucianism, Buddhism, animism, and a wide variety of sects and cults. Some of these sects, notably the Hoa Hao and Cao Dai, took up arms and very nearly toppled the Diem regime when it first assumed power.

Most of the lesser sects and trends of faith depend, for some of their functions, on Buddhist priests. Buddhist pagodas are integral parts of most communities. Buddhist monks have an important influence on about 80 per cent of the people.

The monks in Saigon are more or less divided into two main denominations, the "Mahayana" and the "Theravada."

The Mahayana, many of whom have studied abroad, regard themselves as the progressives. They are the main leaders of the current rebellion against government policy.

But the Theravada monks, the conservatives, are represented in the movement, and there are indications Vietnamese national Buddhism has increasingly welded itself into a single purpose during the past month.

Tough-talking Buddhist leaders show no sign of relaxing their stand. But all of the spectacular demonstrations of the past month have been led by no more than a thousand monks and nuns.

The big question remains whether the powerful South Vietnamese army will be caught up in the flames lighted by the new Buddhist movement.

Check Grain Moisture, Then Store

After your grain bins are thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, you are ready to decide which grain you are going to bin. Check the moisture content of the grain and store on the farm only when this content is 13 per cent or less, unless some type of drying equipment is available.

Use malathion as a stored grain protectant. Use only the premium grade malathion specifically labeled for use upon the grain you are storing. Grain that is dry and free of insects at the time of storage can be protected from stored grain insects for at least one year through the proper application of this protectant. This may be applied to the grain before or as it is being put into storage.

Use 1 pint 57 per cent premium grade malathion emulsifiable concentrate per 1,000 bushels of grain. Mix this amount of malathion with water (from 2 to 5 gallons) and apply to the grain as it is being elevated into the storage area. A 1 per cent premium grade malathion dust can be used at the rate of 50 pounds per 1,000 bushels of grain. Make sure the dust formulation is labeled specifically for use on grain as a protectant.

After binning, level the grain and cap out by spraying the grain surface from above with the malathion protectant. This helps prevent a buildup of Indian meal moth. Use 1/2 pint 57 per cent premium grade malathion emulsifiable concentrate in 1 to 2 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet of grain surface area. After capping out, do not disturb the top of the grain or use forced or heated air, since both of these factors tend to nullify the effects of the protectant.

The use of malathion as a grain protectant offers the cheapest method of prevention or control of stored grain insects available to date. Grain treated with malathion as recommended can safely be fed or sold at any time following treatment.

If a protectant is not used, plan to fumigate the grain 6 to 8 weeks following storage.

Writes Roy Roberts

Tremendous Achievement In Far East Seen by Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — A distinguished American newspaper executive who has just returned from an extended tour of the Far East, Roy Roberts of Kansas City, finds himself much impressed by American leadership in that area. At the same time, however, he sees Red China and the population explosion as great threats to world peace.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—American leadership in the Far East, while defensive at the moment, nevertheless amounts overall to a "tremendous achievement," says Roy A. Roberts, chairman of the board of The Kansas City Star.

Assessing the United States position in a series of articles published in the Star, Roberts wrote: "Mistakes and blunders—yes, waste and millions of dollars down the drain—yes, but over-all a tremendous achievement. Personally, I can't subscribe to the cult of the 'ugly American.' It should be instead, the 'magnificent American.'"

Roberts recently returned from a tour of the Orient and the South Pacific that lasted nearly three months.

He came home, he wrote, with a dominant impression that there are two great threats to the security of the United States and to world peace, Red China and the population explosion.

"Communist Red China presents a far more dangerous threat to world peace and our own future security than Russia," he wrote. "Of that I am completely convinced."

In several articles Roberts described the impact from the sight of Asia's teeming millions. "The sheer mass of humanity is almost overwhelming. The bulk of these people are just existing on the razor edge of subsistence. I brought home the feeling that this pressure of people is almost as dangerous as the nuclear threat itself."

The American position in the Far East, Roberts wrote, "adds up to a series of plus and minus factors, and right now the minus sign predominates." But he added:

ed. "By no means is the situation hopeless."

The problem of the United States in Asia is complicated by history, the years of colonialism, poverty, illiteracy, the rise of Red China, the lack of political experience in the newer nations.

Along with his observations on political issues in the Far East, Roberts added numerous little vignettes of every day life.

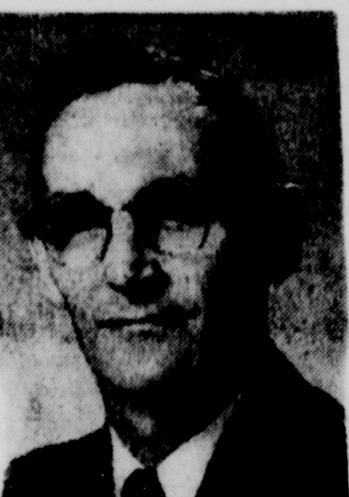

He said that if he were permitted to return to only one city in Asia, it would be Hong Kong.

"It is a shoppers' paradise," he wrote, "based on cheap labor and small margins. You can get a suit made within 48 hours." He appended "a word of advice to American husbands: Don't take your wife to Hong Kong unless you are prepared to loosen your bankroll."

Mrs. P. A. Sillers Reminds DAR of Country's Valor

"The flag of the United States was the first one in the world designed to honor individuals, instead of a dynasty," said Mrs. P. A. Sillers, speaker at the Osage Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, guest Flag Day breakfast. The breakfast, presided over by Mrs. Ira Leiter, regent, was given Saturday morning in the Ambassador Room, Hotel Bothwell.

Mrs. Sillers was introduced by Mrs. Robert S. Johnson.

To illustrate her address, Mrs. Sillers showed flags of significance to our country, from early Viking flags and others of the Columbus, Balboa, Magellan, Ponce de Leon exploration era, through colonists' banners, revolutionary day silks, flags of the confederacy and the present day flag of 50 stars.

A spirit of adventure, heroism, hardiness, valor, exploration, growing self-reliance, revolution, civil strife, unity and greatness is represented in the flag, explained the speaker. The flag, said Mrs. Sillers, has flown over this nation eight times in war; seven times in war with foreign countries and once in time of civil conflict. It first flew over three million people on the Atlantic seaboard and now waves over a wide-flung nation of 285 million. "It represents the faces of all Americans, for America is Americans," said Mrs. Sillers.

To open the meeting, the first stanza of "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung. Mrs. Jess Saunders led in the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag. The American Creed was repeated and invocation was given by Mrs. Lena Booth.

Guests were introduced by their hostesses.

Shooting of Evers Heard Worldwide

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—The rifle shot which killed a Negro leader in Jackson, Miss., "will be the shot heard round the world for civil liberties," a speaker said Sunday.

Robert Arnold, a Wichita attorney and president of a local church group, made that statement to about 400 persons, mostly Negroes, who gathered at the courthouse in an orderly demonstration.

The meeting was called to protest the slaying in Jackson of Medgar Evers, a Mississippi official for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"This is a world revolution," said Dr. C. R. Roquemore, state NAACP president, "not just Jackson, but for Wichita, too. . . . We are making some progress here but don't count on me to be quiet about it. We're too complacent here. Discrimination in Wichita is just as bad as in Jackson."

A brief report was given by Miss Rebek Shaeffer on the meeting at the Old Tavern at Arrow Rock recently. She showed the medal of recognition which was presented to all DAR members who have contributed to the restoration of the tavern, which was a place of rest on the Santa Fe Trail. The tavern is now operated by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Herman Taylor read the national defense report and 28 resolutions were presented by Mrs. C. F. Scotten.

Secretary and treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Herbert Mason and Mrs. Anna Finch, respectively.

Fern and gladioli were trailed down the center of three tables, extending from the head table. Centering the speakers' table was an arrangement of red, white and blue carnations and chrysanthemums, and three silk flags. Correspondence was read by Mrs. William A. Schien.

Negroes Plan Active Protests In Topeka

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—There will be more active protests against racial discrimination in Topeka, a Negro leader said Sunday.

Samuel Jackson, president of the Topeka chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was among several speakers at a demonstration on the statehouse steps.

About 400 persons, including about 10 white persons, gathered in protest against the slaying in Jackson, Miss., of Medgar Evers, an official of NAACP.

Jackson said Evers was a man of action. From now on, he said, the Topeka branch of the NAACP is going to be a branch of action.

He indicated the chapter would picket construction sites and certain office buildings and realtors to fight against discrimination.

Cronin Is Happy

AL Pennant Race Hot As Equadro

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

American League president Joe Cronin was as happy today as a cat who fell on a plate of sardines.

The AL pennant race has become as hot as midsummer's day at the Equator. A year ago Cronin was gleeful over a "short-horn" battle. Today you'd have to use a crowbar to pry the jamming teams apart.

New York's league-leading Yankees took two from the Detroit Tigers for their first twin conquest of the year and discovered the Chicago White Sox were still in a virtual tie with them, only a hot breath away.

The Boston Red Sox, Cleveland Indians and Los Angeles Angels also swept doubleheaders, resulting in a complete shuffle of the next four places.

They're so tightly packed they must be suffering from claustrophobia. The Red Sox were third, 2½ games back of the Yanks and White Sox, with streaking Cleveland and slumping Baltimore each 3½ games back and Minnesota four games behind.

The Yanks bumped off the Tigers 4-0 and 6-3 before 44,357, largest crowd of the season at Yankee Stadium; the Red Sox copped their sixth in a row with 8-1 and 12-5 blitzes of the Orioles before 29,258 — biggest Boston turnout of the year; the White Sox edged the Kansas City A's 2-1 and 3-2 before 29,909 in Chicago; the Indians bumped off Washington 4-2 and 6-4 before a disappointing 15,347 attendance at Cleveland, and the Los Angeles Angels dismayed 36,160 Minneapolis-St. Paul customers by topping the Twins 5-3 and 5-4.

New York got fine pitching from Ralph Terry and Bill Stafford and extra-base power from the hitters in skinning the toothless Tigers.

Terry hurled a three-hitter in the shutout opener. Tom Tresh's two-run double in the first inning and Tony Kubek's two-run homer in the third made work enjoyable for Terry. Stafford required help from Hal Reniff in the ninth but he had it made before then on two runs in the second and four in the fourth off ex-Yankee Killer Hank Aguirre.

Detroit's Al Kaline, the AL's leading batter, ran his hitting streak to 14 games.

Johnny Buzhardt (8-2) pitched an opening game four-hitter, marred only by Norm Siebern's homer with two out in the ninth, and Juan Pizarro and Jim Brosnan combined their pitching talents in the second game for an eight-hitter for the White Sox. J. C. Martin's sacrifice fly drove in the winning run without a hit in the eighth off reliever Bill Fischer.

In the second game, the White Sox scored the big two runs for a 3-1 lead in the sixth on a triple by Jim Landis, a double by Nellie Fox, Pete Ward's bunt single and Floyd Robinson's single.

Roman Mejias walloped three homers—equalling his season's total—in the happy Red Sox' double rout of the Orioles, who lost their 15th of their last 18 decisions. Mejias hit two homers in the first game in backing Bill Monbouquette's (9-4) eight-hitter and the third in the free-hitting closer. Dick Stuart cracked his 15th homer—and his fifth in as many games—in the opener for the Red Sox. Flamethrower Dick Radatz was reached for two runs in the nightcap's seventh inning, snapping his scoreless inning run at 33.

The Angels put on a couple of late uprisings, scoring three runs in the ninth inning of the opener and two in the 11th inning of the closer to cut up the Twins twice. Felix Torres got key hits in both games.

Fred Whitfield's three-run pinch homer in the ninth inning of the second game and a cluster of hits in the eighth of the opener gave the crippled but hopped up Indians their 13th victory in their last 15 contests.

Palmer Turns Attention To US Open

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP)—Arnold Palmer turns his attention to the U.S. Open today, richer, wiser, out of a nagging slump, and once again able to laugh and quip:

"After all these years, I've found my choking price. It's $25,000.

The 33-year-old Latrobe, Pa., strong boy—refreshed and relaxed after a month's layoff — shoved himself back on the throne of golf Sunday by winning the $100,000 Thunderbird Classic in a sudden death playoff with skinny Paul Harney.

Palmer put away his challenger by a stroke with a par 3 on the first extra hole after they had tied over the regulation 72 with 277 totals, picked up his winner's check for $25,000, and was able to say, without a grin:

"It's been a profitable week. I hit only one poor drive in the tournament. I hit only two shots that I was ashamed of. My game has improved a lot.

"That rest was just what I needed, I guess, although the way I approached to the 17th and putted on the 18th, I could have used the practice."

Although he shot a 2-over-par 72 on the last round and let Harney catch him when he hit a too-strong approach and a too-weak chip on the 17th and missed a three-foot putt on the 18th, Palmer dominated the Thunderbird from the start to finish.

Never out of the lead after firing a first-round 67 on the 6,550-yard, par 70 Westchester Country Club course, he showed he can be a front-runner as well as a stretch stormer when he has to.

It was a far different Palmer who flew his own plane to Brookline, Mass., late Sunday night for Thursday's start of the National Open than the one who quit the tour, ailing and disgusted, little more than four weeks ago.

"I was tired, both mentally and physically," he said. "I just had to get away from it for awhile."

With the $25,000 first prize, which led to Palmer's "choking" quip after his missed three-footer forced the playoff, the king became the first golfer in official PGA records to earn more than $400,000 in a career.

A pro since 1955, Palmer has piled up earnings of $401,323, has won 39 official tournaments plus 10 British Open titles, has won 10 of 13 playoffs in which he has been involved, and now trails the year's leading money-winner Jack Nicklaus, by only little more than $2,000.

Nicklaus, bothered by a sore neck here, pocketed $1,075 after shooting a 284 total and has $58,690 in official earnings. Palmer jumped into second place with $56,545.

Harney, with a final round 69, settled for the $10,000 second prize and defending champion Gene Littler took third money of $5,700 after a final round 67 left him but one stroke short of the Palmer-Harney tie.

Cassius Clay Meets Briton Tuesday Night

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's put up or shut up for Cassius Clay in London Town Tuesday night when he meets Henry Cooper, the British and Empire heavyweight champion.

Most of Britain and most of the expected capacity crowd of 55,000 in outdoor Wembley Stadium will be rooting for the London plasterer to nail Cassius with his left hook and rock him to sleep for the count of ten. But most feel sadly that it won't happen.

The Louisville Loudmouth, whose popularity in Britain matches that of a swarm of mosquitoes at a beach, is a 5-1 favorite to whip Ole 'nery in the 10-round.

Clay, 21, has an 18-0 record, including 14 knockouts. He is the No. 2 contender although his prestige was considerably deflated by his failure to make Doug Jones "fall in four" and by his narrow, disputed decision over the 188-pound New Yorker.

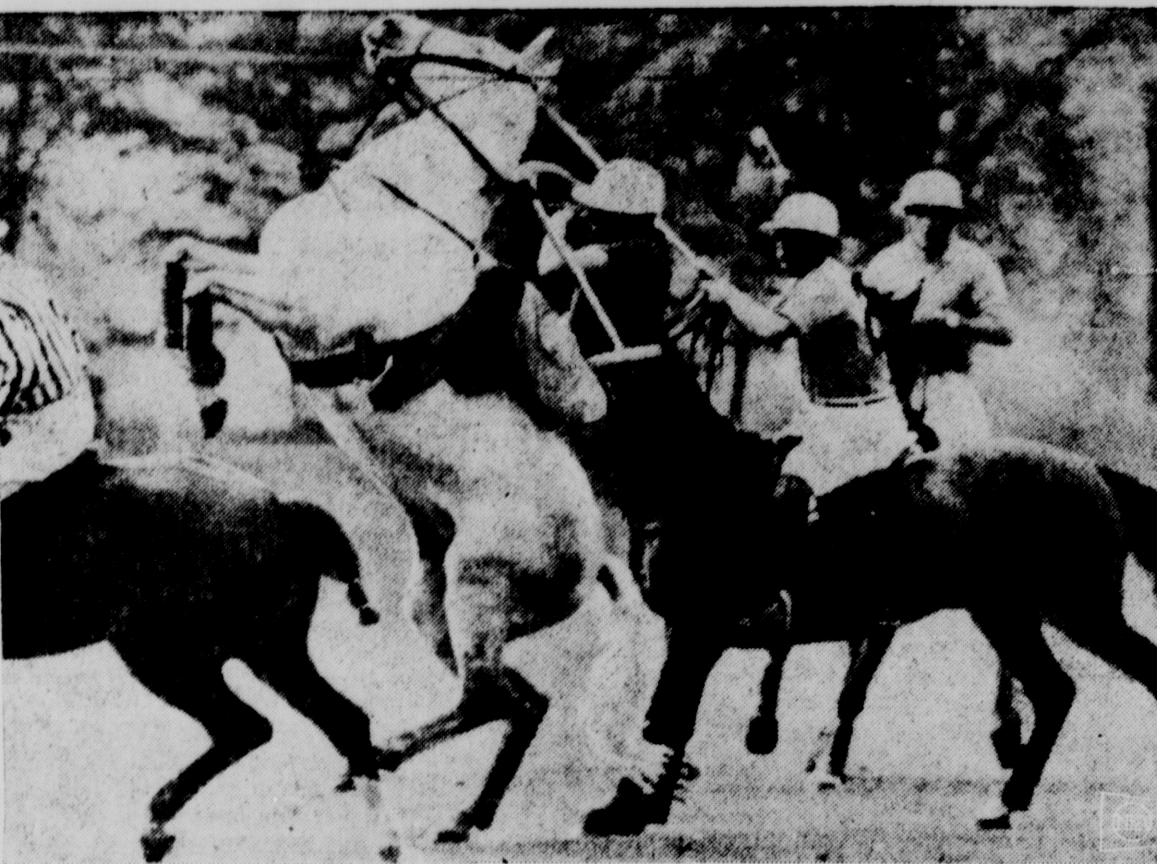

Clay, a 205-pounder, has trumpeted that Cooper, who weighs about 188, will "fall in five."

Cooper, 29, is ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association, and eighth by Ring Magazine. He has a 27-9-1 record, including four straight victories. The cockney has 18 kayoes to his credit and has been stopped five times.

High Jump Record Broken By Lamm Girl

Sherry Lamm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Lamm, Raytown, formerly of Sedalia, Route 2, recently broke the 14-15 year age group high jump record at St. Joseph's high school in Shawnee, sponsored by the Kansas City and Johnson County Girls clubs.

Sherry, who attended school in Smithton before going to Raytown, was also given membership in the National Junior Honor Society, as a freshman with high honors.

WELL REARED—This unnamed Argentine mare may be well bred, but she isn't well trained for polo. She rears high with Don Little of Ipswich during a game at the Myopia Country Club in Hamilton, Mass.

Al Barlick, Umpire, Has Disappeared

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Al Barlick, one of baseball's most highly respected umpires, has called himself out. But the question remains—will he change his decision?

There was no immediate response from the veteran arbiter who dropped out of sight after calling National League headquarters in the wee small hours Sunday morning to tell league secretary Fred Fleig: "I am fed up with the whole thing, and am going to quit and go home."

Barlick, a protege of the late Bill Klem when he broke into the majors in 1940, checked out of his Cincinnati hotel about 3 a.m., shortly after the call to Fleig, apparently in order to drive to his home in Springfield, Ill.

Neither reporters nor National League President Warren Giles were able to reach him there. He did not work the New York Mets-Cincinnati Reds Sunday doubleheader as scheduled.

"All I have to say is that he is a fine umpire, a great umpire, and I hope he will reconsider," Giles said. "I have been unable to contact him and hope he will change his mind."

There was no official comment from league headquarters on the possible cause of his sudden decision, but Barlick and other NL umpires long have been dissatisfied with what they called lack of proper backing and supervision from league headquarters.

This, and other related subjects, including the recent balk rule controversy, came up in an informal and sometimes heated discussion between Barlick and some baseball writers early Sunday morning.

Barlick has been quoted as strongly favoring the establishment of a league supervisor of umpires, which the American League has in Cal Hubbard, a former umpire. NL umpires work directly under the supervision of Giles and Fleig.

Barlick, the National League's senior umpire in point of service, is known to have felt that the umpires took the butt of criticism for the balk controversy earlier this season and resented it.

The National League, working under a literal interpretation of the rule, called more than 100 balks in the opening weeks of the season while the American League called nine in the same period.

Eventually the uproar caused Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to call a meeting of the executive council and liberalize the interpretation of the rule.

Barlick, originally a coal miner who started umpiring sandlot ball at $1 a game to earn money during a miners strike, turned professional in 1936. He was 25 when he came to the National League in 1940.

He missed the 1956 and 1957 seasons because of illness, but since has been in good health. He umpired six World Series and five All Star games.

National AAU Meet

14 Champions To Defend Titles

ST. LOUIS (AP)—At least 14 defending champions will lead an outstanding field in the 75th National AAU Track and Field Championships Friday and Saturday morning to tell league secretary Fred Fleig: "I am fed up with the whole thing, and am going to quit and go home."

Barlick, a protege of the late Bill Klem when he broke into the majors in 1940, checked out of his Cincinnati hotel about 3 a.m., shortly after the call to Fleig, apparently in order to drive to his home in Springfield, Ill.

Among the defending champions are Jim Beatty, barrel-chested little distance man from Los Angeles who is the world's No. 2 miler, and Olympic broad jump champion Ralph Boston. The field also includes former Olympic champs Parry O'Brien, shot put and Harold Connelly, hammer, throw. Al Hall of New York, defending champ in the hammer, could upset Connelly since he has been in top form recently.

Al Oerter of New York, world record holder in the discus, will be the 15th defending titlist should treatments of a slipped disc in his back permit him to compete. He's on the doubtful list.

Connelly also is a world record holder and the entry list includes three collegians who have world records pending. They are Brian Sternberg, Washington, 16-foot 8 inches in the pole vault; Henry Carr, Arizona State, 20.3 seconds for the 220 around a turn, and Adolph Plummer, New Mexico, 44.9 in the 440.

The meet will be held during a lull in the bitter fight between the AAU and the NCAA-backed U.S. Track and Field Federation. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, appointed arbitrator by President Kennedy, ruled recently the AAU championships didn't require USTFF sanction and ordered the colleges to permit their athletes to compete.

Even without top collegians, the U.S. would have been certain to have a powerful team. But their absence might have been enough to swing the meet in Russia's favor.

Club and free lance athletes and servicemen hold the best marks in 13 events on the 20-event AAU championship program.

The collegians lead the way in the 100, 220, 880, pole vault, javelin and 3,000 meter steeplechase. But the AAU could have filled much of the gap with top men from the NAIA, which backs

Shuts Out Cubs In Majors Debut

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
"I found my curve in Honolulu." Those are not the opening words to a new hula tune, to be crooned to the strum of a ukelele, while palms and wahines sway.

Willhite made his major league debut Sunday and shut out the Chicago Cubs 2-0 in the second game of a doubleheader. He gave up only five hits, struck out six and walked just one.

His win gave the Dodgers a split, as the Cubs won the opener 8-3. The National league-leading San Francisco Giants also split, losing to Houston 3-0 and winning 4-3, and the St. Louis Cardinals divided a pair with Pittsburgh, losing 4-3 in 12 innings and winning 11-7.

Philadelphia and Milwaukee split, the Phils taking the second game 7-4 in 11 innings and the Braves the opener 5-3.

The Cincinnati Reds scored the only sweep on the full 10-game slate, trouncing the New York Mets 11-5 and 10-3.

The Dodgers' young Willhite suddenly found his curve and his winning ways while working for Spokane in the Pacific Coast League. Strictly a fast ball pitcher before, he said he uncovered the curve in a game in Hawaii. (Where girls are called "wahines").

With the new weapon he won his last six games at Spokane, striking out 38 in his last 31 innings. The 5-foot-2, 190-pound native of Tulsa, Okla., also pitched complete games his last three starts.

Willhite's victory kept the Dodgers a game back of the Giants and a half game behind the Cards, after Bob Buhl beat them handily in the opener for his sixth victory.

The Giants, pitched into first place Saturday by Juan Mari-chal's no-hitter, held on when Billy Pierce and Jim Duffalo combined to stop a Houston ninth inning rally in the second game. Don Nottebart, who suffered a sprained right foot in the fifth inning, and Jim Umbricht combined to shut the Giants out in the opener. Catcher Jim Campbell's two-run double was the big blow for the Colts.

Al McBean pitched six scoreless innings of relief for the Pirates and won his own game in the 12th with a homer to run his record to 7-1. The Cards bounced back with seven extra-base hits to take the second game, despite three-run homers by both Jim Pagliarini and Ted Savage for the Pirates.

The Braves fought back from a 3-0 deficit in the opener against the Phils, with five singles for four runs in the seventh inning. In the second game the Phils came from behind to tie the game in the ninth and win in the 11th.

Jim Maloney won his 10th victory in the opener and Jim O'Toole his 12th in the second game for the Reds. The pitchers, who won 25 games between them last year, now have a combined 22-5 record, to take up the slack left by Bob Purkey and Joey Jay. Purkey and Jay won 44 games last season, but have only four so far this year.

The Reds collected 24 hits, nine for extra bases, off six New York pitchers. Al Jackson and Roger Craig took the losses.

Too Busy To Worry Over Emmies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When "The Beverly Hillbillies" failed to pick up any Emmies at the recent television academy awards, the show's creator, Paul Henning, wasn't surprised.

"I thought we wouldn't win any, though I believed Irene Ryan might have had a chance as best actress," said the writer-producer. "Everyone in television is so worried these days about public opinion that they would vote for shows that elevate the industry's image."

He has no time to fret about a lost statuette or two. He's too busy fathering the season's most successful show and siring a new one to star Bea Benaderet, "Petitot Junction."

The success of "The Beverly Hillbillies" has amazed the experts and stunned the intellectuals. But it's no mystery to Henning.

"I think we stuck to what we set out to do: make a funny show," he said. "Success in this business is 99 per cent luck, and we had it in many ways—the selection of a perfect cast, especially."

"Also, our timing was good. The country was ready for a show like 'The Hillbillies' where it might not have been two years ago. I think it is the kind of humor that appeals to a broad area of America that lies outside the three major city areas. The urban people also enjoy it, but they don't want to admit it."

"A government official who tours all over the country put a finger on it. He wrote us and said in the South and in small towns, people watch 'The Hillbillies' with the shades up. In the cities they watch it, but keep the shades down."

"The Beverly Hillbillies" marks the emergence into public recognition of one of Hollywood's ace comedy craftsmen. As you might guess, the source of his humor is the American heartland. He was born and grew up in Independence, Mo.

Yes, he knew Harry Truman. "I used to work in the drugstore when Harry was a country judge," recalled Henning. "He would come in with his cronies, a lot of them his pals from the war, and they'd match nickles to see who would pay for the sodas."

Tunisians Recover Lost Spirit

By ANDREW BOROWICZ
TUNIS (AP) — The Tunisian army is gradually recovering from two bitter blows against its pride and unity—the 1961 Bizerte battle and last December's plot against President Habib Bourguiba.

Recently, celebrating Tunisia's Victory Day, the army for the first time showed its brand-new American equipment before cheering crowds.

It was a smooth show of the Louisiana-sized republic's fighting capacity, almost entirely provided by the United States.

While Tunisia's economic activity is open to both Western and Eastern influence, its military domain is limited mainly to the help from the United States and France, Tunisia's former colonial master.

Traditionally, St. Cyr—France's West Point—is the preferred training ground for young Tunisian cadets. In view of increasing shipments of American military equipment, however, more and more Tunisian military men are sent to the U.S. for training.

It was nearly two years ago when the fledgling Tunisian Army suffered a series of shattering blows at the hand of armor and warship-backed French troops at Bizerte.

France staged a massive counterattack when thousands of Tunisian demonstrators besieged the Bizerte base, trying to force its evacuation. The battle lasted four days and ended in a United Nations-imposed truce.

Few Tunisian Army commanders had expected bloodshed at the time of the blockade. The demonstration was almost entirely in the hands of civilian leaders.

After the battle, Tunisian officers under Secretary of Defense Bahl Ladgham worked hard to give new spirit and strength to the weakened army.

But last December the army suffered another blow to its morale. A group of generally young and promising officers were arrested on charges of plotting against Bourguiba's life. They were sentenced to death and shot.

Once again the army closed its ranks. Superior officers — Gens. Mohamed el Kefi and Habib Tabib — worked to reforge unity. They asked the government to stage a display of power that would boost the army's morale and at the same time show it in a different light to the public.

The capital's acclaim was what the army needed—and got.

In normal times, Tunisia—with a population of nearly four million—has a dozen infantry battalions, one or two motorized. In addition, there is an armored cavalry unit including 10 American-made light tanks and a field artillery group. These units are backed by a specialized detachment equipped with modern American material.

The fledgling air force consists of 14 Swedish fighter-trainers. Two Piper Cubs and four helicopters. Flight instruction is almost entirely by Swedish officers. The navy has one destroyer escort and six patrol boats.

bile which was made in Kansas City, Kan., and my brother used to repair it for him. Harry still remembers that."

Henning studied at the Kansas City, Mo., School of Law, but he found singing on radio more appealing. He broke into bigtime radio in 1937 when he sent a script to the Fibber McGee and Molly show in Chicago. Head writer Don Quinn hired him.

He moved on to Hollywood and labored for Rudy Vallee, Burns and Allen, Dennis Day and Bob Cummings before striking oil with the Hillbillies.

"I used to work in the drugstore when Harry was a country judge," recalled Henning. "He would come in with his cronies, a lot of them his pals from the war, and they'd match nickles to see who would pay for the sodas."

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Dr. Morton Sobell, 48, serving a 30-year prison term as a Russian spy, is undergoing physical examination at the U. S. Medical Center in Springfield.

A New York radar expert, Sobell was convicted in 1951 of helping Julius and Ethel Rosenberg give U. S. atomic secrets to Russia. The Rosenbergs were executed for treason.

Sobell started his sentence at Alcatraz, then was transferred to the Atlanta prison in 1953.

Dr. Russell O. Settle, warden of the center, said he didn't know whether Sobell will be returned to Atlanta when the tests are finished. The warden said he didn't know the nature of Sobell's ailment.

Trout On The Menu After Flash Flood

DUCHESNE, Utah (AP) — It will be trout on the menu tonight for many residents of this north-eastern Utah town tonight.

The receding waters of a flash flood on the North Fork of the Duchesne River Sunday left hundreds of fish on dry land. Area residents quickly scooped them up. Many weighed as much as five pounds.

Utah fish and game officials added a black note though. They said probably all of the fish in the river—a sportsmen's paradise—were killed by the wild waters.

Ann Landers Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school junior who undertook a part-time job which will enable me to save money for college.

A certain married woman who works in the shipping department where I load trucks has been very nice to me. I think she would like to be a lot nicer and this is my problem.

She is supposed to be through work at 6:00 p.m. but she always hangs around to have a cup of coffee with me. Her husband works the night shift and she says she doesn't have anything to do at home.

Yesterday she told me I ought to part my hair in the middle and then she took her comb out of her purse and started combing. She got so close to me she steamed up my glasses. I like her, Ann, but I don't want to get mixed up with a married woman. She has pull with the boss and I can't take a chance on hurting her feelings. Please tell me what to do.—NO JOKE.

Dear No. 10: Tell that shipping room Cleopatra you think she is charming but married women are strictly out of bounds. Then part your hair on the side, Buster.

Dear Ann Landers: I am furious with the mother of those eight children who wrote she "could scream" when she sees someone one the porch with a box of hand-me-down clothes.

The woman may speak for herself, but she certainly does not speak for me. I have seven children. My husband has a good job, as hers does. We are not wealthy either — just comfortable. Our friends and relatives have been bringing use hand-me-downs ever since the children were babies. It's been a great help.

I've never considered hand-me-downs an expression of pity. They are gifts of good will from people who like and respect us. The children's attitudes are extremely healthy. They have never been too proud to wear second-hand clothes. They actually argue about who is going to get what.

So, please, Ann Landers, make it plain that SOME of us love to see those boxes. Humility is not an altogether extinct virtue. —GRATEFUL.

Dear Grateful: YOU made it plain and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a touchy problem which revolves around a head-strong boss and his irritating habit of bumming cigarettes.

Mr. H. is under doctor's orders. He is not supposed to smoke—so he doesn't buy any. His son works in the office and has asked me to let him know at once if I see his father smoking.

If Mr. H. spots a pack of cigarettes on my desk he takes one. When I am away from my desk goes into the top drawer and helps himself. Whenever he sees me smoking he asks for a cigarette. Yesterday when he asked for a cigarette I reminded him that the doctor said he should not smoke. He told me to mind my own business—that I was paid to work and not to lecture him about his health.

He bums from 8 to 10 cigarettes from me every day and I am sick of it. Please don't tell me to stop smoking. I enjoy it. What I need is a solution to the problem.—UP IN SMOKE.

Dear Up: The first thing in the morning, hand over your pack of cigarettes to the boss' son. When
